Halloween 'Crime Scene Handprint' Drinking Glass

Opaque glass paint and your own handprint will add a bit of spooky fun to a plain drinking glass! Quick and easy-to-make leave these glasses a Halloween necessity! We purchased our glass at the dollar store and decorated several.

To make each glass you will need desired size drinking glass, made of glass rubbing alcohol, to clean glass water-based paint for glass-red dish soap, large wide paintbrush, small round paintbrush, soap and water, paper towels, newspaper, oven

Wash glass with dish soap and dry. Wipe surface of glass to be painted with rubbing alcohol. Make sure glass is free of streaks and allow to dry.

Cover work space with newspaper. With large wide brush, paint palm of hand with red paint. Working quickly while paint is wet, grasp glass in desired location. Press palm firmly against outside of glass to get a good impression. Carefully remove hand from glass. *Wash hand in warm soapy water to remove paint. Touch up any places on the handprint with small round paintbrush. With the same brush, add dripping "blood" from fingerprints, as seen in the photograph. Allow paint to dry. Bake glass in oven according to manufacturer's instructions on the paint label.

Hand wash painted glass in mild soapy water.

*For the best results, we found it better to wash our hands after each impression, starting with a clean hand for each glass.

Sources: Drinking Glass: Dollar Tree: Paint; Americana Gloss Enamel (Tuscan Red) by DecoArt

First Published October © 2011 http://erikhomemade.typepad.com®